• MORPC Resolution

This resolution is being sought from all members by MORPC. MORPC has that reviews and revises the Articles of Agreement and the Bylaws. Their overall goal for the most recent revisions is to provide more clarity, consistency, flexibility, and simplicity to the Articles of Agreement and Bylaws. The Commission adopted the proposed amendments on September 19, 2013. The revisions do not affect how MORPC does business and do not affect how we relate to MORPC; instead it primarily cleans up language and provides greater efficiency in how meetings are run. If you wish me to provide you with a detailed list of revisions please let me know. MORPC would like the resolution to be approved and effective by Dec. 11.

• Ordinance Authorizing Contract for Health Services with Franklin County Health District

Groveport Parks & Recreation Department
Council Report

September 2013

Tile Work in Secondary Lobby of GRC

Staff has signed a contract with Continental Commercial Floors. The existing vinyl floor will be removed and replaced with ceramic tile. The tile will have a four color pattern. Work should begin in October 2013 and will take place during normal operating hours. Staff will work with the contractor so that patrons have access to all areas of the facility.

Landscaping of Digital Marquee Sign

Staff worked with a local contractor for the brick work and hydro-seeding around the new digital marquee sign. Staff recently planted boxwoods and mums in the planter. Staff has received a lot of positive feedback from the general public regarding the sign.

Cracksealing, Sealcoating & Striping

Staff has signed a contract with M & D Blacktop to have the paved parking lots in Groveport Park cracksealed, sealcoated and striped. The contract also includes sealcoating the paved leisure path. Cracksealing will most likely be completed in 2013, but the sealcoating and striping may have to be completed in 2014. Contractors are behind in their work due to the wet summer.

Art Work in Group Fitness Studio

Staff will be adding four large (48" x 96") colorful collages to the Group Fitness Studio. The collages show people exercising. Staff hopes that the collages will give more life to the room and help to motivate class participants.

Southeast Senior Center Health Fair

The Groveport Recreation/Senior Center hosted the Southeast Senior Center Health Fair on September 11, 2013 (10 AM – 1 PM). Patrons were able to meet with local health care providers and enjoy FREE Blood Pressure Screenings, FREE Lunch and Door Prizes. The event was sponsored by Scioto Community, Mount Carmel Hospice & Palliative Care and the Wesley Ridge Retirement Community. Staff believes that over 150 people attended the event.

Concussions in Sports

Concussions are a surprisingly common occurrence in sports. High school athletes suffer thousands of concussions every year, most often in football, ice hockey & soccer. Concussions do not always involve being knocked out, or loss of consciousness. A concussion occurs whenever a child's mental status changes as a result of trauma (usually a blow to the head). A child who shows signs of mental confusion or is "dinged" by a blow to the head has suffered a concussion.

Sports-related concussions often result in mental & physical symptoms (e.g., inability to concentrate, forgetfulness, headache, fatigue, dizziness). For many athletes, the symptoms disappear after about 10 days and they typically do not last more than several months. In some cases though, concussions can lead to persistent complaints of physical, mental, emotional & behavioral symptoms, sometimes referred to as post-concussion syndrome. We do not know whether persistent post-concussive symptoms result primarily from medical or psychological causes. In rare cases, when repeated concussions occur over a brief interval, athletes may suffer from second impact syndrome, a pathological response of the brain that can be life-threatening if not treated promptly. Parents should seek careful evaluation and management of any sports-related concussion.

Concussions are typically managed according to their severity. Immediately after a concussion, medical evaluation is needed to determine a child's vital signs and level of consciousness and to rule out any other injuries, such as those to the spine. Recent guidelines indicate that any child who loses consciousness as a result of a trauma during a sporting event should be evaluated by a hospital emergency department. In cases of less severe concussion, athletes are typically evaluated on site rather than in hospital emergency departments. There are a variety of approaches to the "sideline" assessment of concussion. Guidelines are also available to assist in deciding when a child is ready to play after a concussion.

Neurological assessment is widely regarded as the most sensitive way of detecting disturbances in brain function associated with a concussion. The National Football League and the National Hockey League have both instituted systematic programs of neuropsychological testing, as have many colleges. Athletes are administered brief tests of attention, memory & speed of information before the season. Athletes who sustain concussions are tested again, typically within 48 hours of the injury and at regular intervals afterward. Recovery to baseline levels of performance is typically required before athletes are allowed to return to play. Similar cooperative programs can be instituted for organized athletic programs at the high school level. In the absence of programmatic testing, athletes who complain of persistent post-concussive symptoms should be considered for a more comprehensive neuropsychological evaluation.

Changes in the rules for athletic competition have reduced the number of sports-related concussions. After the N.C.A.A. made the use of head when tackling illegal in 1976, the annual number of head & neck injuries in football declined by about 50%. The required use of helmets in many contact sports & advances in helmet design also have resulted in fewer head injuries. Improved conditioning of young athletes, especially strengthening of neck muscles, may also help prevent concussions.

If a child sustains a concussion, parents should seek medical care. They should request a description of symptoms indicative of worsening brain injury and of common post-concussive symptoms, as well as guidelines for return to play and for medical follow-up. For athletes who experience persistent difficulties after a concussion, such as headaches, difficulty concentrating, irritability, sleep disturbances, or dropping grades, an effective treatment plan will often combine education, cognitive rehab., psychological support and in some cases medication.
